INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

SALISBURY old burying ground, the original church-yard, is an enclosure, nearly square, and containing some three-quarters of an acre of land. The town became possessed of it 29 May, 1750, by a deed of gift from Robert Walker of Stratford, an original proprietor of Salisbury. The earliest date recorded in the yard is that found upon the tomb-stone of Dr. Wade Clark, who died Aug. 6, 1750.

Since about the year 1830, when burials became infrequent, the yard has been kept in a fair state of repair. In general the inscriptions are well preserved. A few stones are broken; a few are illegible. There are many unknown graves.

Of the three hundred inscriptions in this pamphlet, some have been secured only by diligent effort. All of them have been carefully verified. No stone has been wittingly left unturned.
